Dearest Moms:

Yesterday, being the first day of February, New York City saw its first snow of the season - a wet, sticky snow, that looked pretty, but it turned to rain late in the afternoon and is warm and rainy today. It is supposed to clear tomorrow.

Yesterday noon I went to Times Square on an errand and Jim (one of my bosses) asked me to get him a Providence paper, so I bought a Transcript just for the fun of it. It was good to see the old home town paper again, and I cut out these four items I thought you might be interested in.

I called Peg last night. Still waiting, but they are all fine. If nothing happens by Sunday, the Dr. is going to have her go to the hospital and so get things started. Will let you know, I may go out Saturday, haven't made definite arrangements yet. This is the weekend Helen goes skiing in Stowe, Vermont - from tonight until Monday night. The snow there is supposed to be poor. Guess there is no such thing as the good old-fashioned winter any more.

Your dress arrived Tuesday. It is very pretty and you will get lots of wear from it. I will keep it nicely for you. As of the moment, none of the two other packages have arrived, but no doubt they will soon.

We didn't go to Central Church Sunday because Uncle Ted was preaching at Mt. Holyoke that Sunday. He said he missed not seeing you there!

I have a new job! - Worked on it last Friday, this Monday and closed the deal Tuesday. It is with a fund-raising outfit - right now working on a campaign to raise money for a university in Japan. It sounds interesting - I will be sort of an assistant to two men - handling mail and details - dictating letters to a secretary! Nice raise in salary I got, too. So far, the location is the only thing against it - on 23rd street near 4th Avenue. But, can't have everything. I will be here all next week and maybe part of the following, depending on when they get someone for this job. I am quite excited about it. It sounds like a bigger job than I have ever had, but I might as well take the plunge sometime if I am ever going to get ahead, and this sounds like something I can do - not technical or out of my line of understanding - I hope.

Am going to work for Mr. T. this afternoon, his girl being out sick.
It will be either fun or terrible if he is in a bad mood, but busy, anyway and I do like him. (He was in a wonderful mood & we had fun)

Will be busy now having last lunches with people this week and next.
I am much more excited about this new job than I was going over to work for Brad, so maybe "this is it" as we say in the trade. One of the men
I interviewed came all the way up here to Compton's and talked with Marjorie Irwin, Mr. T. and went over to see Brad. I also had to go down again and interview the big boss, so I was well checked up on.

Must go to lunch now. Can't mail this till I get home tonight, tho, as I left your address at home and can't remember it. So, so long for now.

Home - found your card written Monday from Fort Pierce, saying you had no address there & were going on to Del Ray, but I will send it along anyway, as I had planned. Will wait for another address before writing next. Take care, dear, & don't let the "bitters" get you down. Over all, you are having a nice time, you know.

Helen just left for the station.

All love,
Julia

P.S. - I forgot to put in the clippings - so I had to unseal & make a new envelope! Dumb Bunsy me!

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Remillard, of Artisan St., accompanied by Mrs. Remillard's parents Mr. and Mrs. Felix Provost of Artisan St., and her aunt and uncle Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Provost of Shepard St., have returned to their homes after attending the funeral of Julien Provost, 93, of Montreal. Mr. Provost is the father of Felix and Joseph Provost. He lived in Holyoke for 40 years before moving to Montreal 25 years ago.

Paquette-Rosiack

In a ceremony this morning at the Church of the Nativity, Miss Sophie Rosiack, of Whitman St., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wadislaw Rosiack, of Breteuil Eure, France, became the bride of Donald Paquette, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Paquette, of 45 Whitman St. Rev. Leon Ruty, pastor, performed the 8 o'clock ceremony using the single-ring service. Miss Eva Terrien was the organist.

The couple's only attendants were the bridegroom's father and his brother, Lawrence Paquette, of Holyoke.

The bride's white duchess satin gown had long sleeves, low square neckline, fitted bodice, full floor length skirt. Her fingertip silk veil was caught to a band of tulle rose buds, and she carried a colonial bouquet of camellias.

To assist the bridal couple in receiving guests the bridegroom's mother selected a navy blue crepe dress trimmed with lace and black accessories, with a corsage of gardenias. A reception for

CHICOPEE

Mayor to Name 14 Reserve Cops On Saturday

Mayor Edward Bourbeau today received an eligible list from the Civil Service commission for appointment of 14 reserve firemen for Chicopee. They will receive $7.20 per day. The appointments will be made by Mayor Bourbeau next Saturday morning. One of the eligibles, Arthur L. Peloquin of 46 Ludger Ave., Aldenville, is now a permanent patrolman on the Chicopee police department, so his name is being eliminated.

The first two names on the list are those of disabled veterans, so they lead the list. They are John F. Healy of 4 Laurel St. and Lionel H. Beaudry of 31 East St., both of Chicopee Falls. Heading the rest of the list is Alexander Pelland of 82 Rivers Ave., Williamansett, who had the highest average of 95.7 percent.

Others on the list are: Spiro V. Panagotopoulos of 16 Ambrose St., George St. Jean of 106 East St., Joseph P. Noga of 56 St. James Ave., Mitchell E. Szady of 47 Harvard St., Henry L. Moran, Jr., of 173 Broadway, and John J. Szkolp, 46 Cochran St., all of Chicopee Falls; Lionel A. Denault, 119 Prospect St., Williamansett, son of City Messenger Roland L. Bazinet; Stanley J. Burkott, 268 East St. and Marcel R. Forcier, Fuller Rd., both of Chicopee Falls, and Edward S. Zuchowicz of 88 Exchange St., Chicopee.

POULTRY STEALING FELONY

BOSTON (AP)—Anyone caught stealing chickens in Massachusetts now may go to state's prison for up to three years. Gov. Paul A. Dever has signed a bill making poultry thieving a felony. Under the old law it was only a misdemeanor. Poultry dealers sought stiffer penalties.
